The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,2,4-6 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Woodworth.

At col.5, line 1, Woodworth teaches a turn on delay of the shunt transistor of a few milliseconds (limitation of claim 5).

At col.8, line 39, Woodworth teaches a turn off delay of the shunt transistor of about 30 milliseconds (limitation of claim 6).

Claims 1-4,7 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Hongel.

Hongel addresses the MOSFET limitations of claims 3 and 7.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.

Art Unit: 2836

4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hongel in view of Sitbon et al.

Hongel teaches a relay contact protective circuit that detects a transient in the inductive relay operating coil and turns on a low resistance power MOSFET transistor in shunt relation with the contacts before the contacts open whereby arcing or deposition of metal on the contacts is avoided. The device taught by Hongel only differs from the claims by not being said to be a relay operating in a network client (server) environment.

Sitbon teaches that the use of relays in the network client environment is old and well known in the art.

It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to use the teaching of Hongel in the relays used in the network client environment because both teachings relate to the use of relays in DC power consuming devices, with the teachings of Hongel providing a needed increase in relay reliability useful in a server power system.

Claim 11 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
